

Cycling for pancreatic cancer

A Maritime-wide bike tour made a stop in Sydney, Saturday, to help bring awareness to pancreatic cancer. A total of 18 cyclists took part in the ride on the Cabot Trail. In the back row, from left to right, are riders Stefanie Condon-Oldreive, Kelly Power and Dr. Mark Walsh, who spoke at the information session that followed at the Cape Breton Regional Hospital. In the front is Cheryl LeBlanc-Weldon of the Craig's Cause Pancreatic Cancer Society, Cape Breton chapter. T.J. Colello - Cape Breton Post
